Receiving the Holy Spirit Today

God didn't leave me with nothing so that each time I need strength I had to reach up far with my works unto holiness. He did not leave me unsure and base ever reaching to the heavens to live in unwholeness until heaven.

Rather he sent His son to die for me to raise me up, to dwell in me, to seat me in the heavenlies, a loving invitation to righteousness for never has a man pulled himself from the ground where the range of his senses limits him only.

"I don't have to lean on him when I'm alone" as the song says. I'm never alone. I don't have to beg Him for strength. His strength lives within me.

He is my being and my Lord. And from the height of the heavenlies we look to the world to raise them up to the knowledge we see, to lift them out of the disorder of the world to the heightened perspective of our God and His love.
