How do people prepare for a meeting they are not leading?

1. Consider the purpose and objective for the meeting.
2. How am I related to the purpose?
3. How can I contribute to the meeting to help with the objective?
4. Speak in tongues much for the meeting, especially for the leadership.
5. Ask myself how I would handle the meeting if it were my responsibility.
6. Encourage others to be expectant for the meeting.
7. Ask Father for a quiet mind that can be the most receptive for learning.
8. Be sure any previously given assignment is fully completed.
9. Thank Father for the privilege of being a part of the meeting.

Ross Tracy

"I'm learning I can prepare myself beforehand for Corps night. Maybe, going to the pond and getting real quiet - reading the Word. OK - if I'm sleepy - maybe - giving - by sharing the Word or rapping with someone. Anything - to get excited and expecting to receive God's Word with meekness." Paula Caffarel

This play was given during the presentation of the Seal of the President of the Way - Way Woods, May 11, 1975

If Only the Trees Could Speak

Ted: Tammy? Tammy?

Tammy: Yes, Ted?

Ted: Do you think Tom is awake?

Tammy: I don't know. Let's find out. Tom, wake up!

Tom: I'm awake. I've been awake for hours. A flock of singing birds woke me at sunrise.

Tammy: Tom, have you noticed, people are coming back!

Tom: Yes, of course, it's spring again.

Ted: The buds are springing forth and we're growing a beautiful new foliage. And the birds are back, building new homes amongst our branches.

Tom: I can see our canopy weaving together as our leaves unfold, and the Corps so lovingly cleaned us up.

Ted: They've done a nice job.

Tammy: The whole woods are blessed by it. Is the Doctor here today? (Seeing him) Yes, there he is. Oh, seeing him again makes me feel reminiscent.

Tom: Do you remember the first time we saw him?

Ted: Yes, it was many growing seasons ago.

Tom: Oh, such a lanky build and such a curious searching mind, and his voice (laughing) similar to these sparrows.

Ted: That has changed so.

Tammy: So persistent.

Tom: So exuberant.

Ted: But so alone.

Tom: Yet not alone.

Tammy: Oh, yes! Our Maker certainly was with him since he started but the people have truly been exciting not only to us, but to the Doctor also.

Ted: Oh, how I remember those days. The first day he was out here I thought he was going to talk us out of ten years growth.

Tom: Yes, but wouldn't you say that just the opposite has been true? He's probably doubled our life span.

Tammy: And through the years haven't we noticed the same steady growth in him as in ourselves? He has changed so much.

Tom: Yet, he hasn't, has he? That same fire is there, yet hotter. Wouldn't you say Ted?

Ted: Yes, how I look forward every time to his sharing the words of life.

Tom: It's so exciting seeing the people's lives changed. Have you noticed the people getting that same fire?

Tammy: Isn't it super?

Ted: I so feel like clapping my hands hearing those words of life.

Tom: No wonder people's hearts thrill when they hear that spoken Word. (Attitude) Oh, it's almost unbelievable.

Tammy: Yes. What memories. What change.

Tom: From solitary sermons, until today when every time he speaks it causes heads to turn and hearts to open and people's lives burst forth as a robin hurdling through the cherry blossoms in the glistening sun.

Ted: And, ah, yes, it appears to be another special day. All eyes seem to be upon our Doctor. All eyes seem upon him, but if they only knew.

Tammy: Yes. If they knew what we know about his heart.

Ted: Oh, but they must be learning it.

Tom: Our observations are pricelessly original.

Tammy: We are certainly privileged trees. Yes, of all the trees in America. Many have watched history being made, the coming of the first white man, the battles with the Indians, the pioneers settling the wilderness; but we have watched the man of God grow up.

Ted: Let's listen and watch real history take place again.

"It takes a man of God sharing the Word to see the details of God's heart. We as a family are running, searching after God's heart hand in hand." Patty Eaton

"Believing is the greatest horse sense in the world." Uncle Harry

"This is the first time in about four years that anyone ever sang Happy Birthday to me. I really dug it. Thanks-- It's greater to give than to receive." Steve Santini
